

This is Josh Swayze. He is a senior at San Diego State University. He firmly believes in a healthy lifestyle that balances both schoolwork, social life, and most importantly, exercise. Josh loves to play basketball as much as he can.

Josh works hard at a local diner. He stays on top of all his schoolwork and works out. His favorite thing to do in his free time is play basketball, but often, the University courts are empty and he has no one to play with. He does not want to join his school's club team because he is not very skilled.

Josh decides to download our app to connect with other people in the area that want to play, maybe not so competitively. He sets up his account and quickly finds many people like him looking for some friendly competition.

Josh is now connected with thousands of other people, from talented athletes to people just looking for play for fun. He joins a team of people that are at his skill level and quickly makes new friends.

Josh also picks up on some new sports including golf, baseball, and flag football. He and his teams schedule games about 2-3 times a week, and now Josh is never left to be lonely and play by himself.

Through our app, Josh Swayze was able to become a part of multiple amateur sports teams and even go on to win a couple championships in his league. He has picked up new hobbies and made many new friends through competition. He is no longer bored often and has games to look forward to every week. Josh recommends the app for anyone looking to play almost any sport, regardless of skill level, and promises that users will make plenty of new friendships.
